Lance/Marvin, while I was out on the site tour this week, we came across some interesting information.

1. The attached property ownership map has an incorrect owner listed. Property 8 is shown to extend across the road. This triangle piece of property (highlighted in red) is not owned by the (b) (6), but is owned by Falcon Oil Properties.
2. While out on the site we came upon this rail car. This car was labeled Enjay chemical company, a division of Humble Oil Refining, UTLX 83010, Union Tank Car Company. (See picture below.) A quick google search indicated that it is related to Standard Oil, Esso, and then Exxon.
3. One of the residents knows a resident that lives on or near the Ohio Oil Site just north of Wilcox. The resident indicated that the deeds show Wilcox to have been an owner of the property. In addition, Todd Downham (ODEQ) knows of another resident that showed him the same information in their deed during the last community meeting. We were thinking, we would ask these folks for copies.
